

Arch Resources Announces Closing of Exchanges with Holders of Approximately $125.2 Million Principal Amount of Convertible Notes

May 26, 2022

ST. LOUIS, May 26, 2022 /PRNewswire/ -- Arch Resources, Inc. (NYSE: ARCH) ("Arch Resources" or "Arch" or "us") today announced that on May 25, 2022, it closed its previously announced privately negotiated exchanges (the "exchanges") of $125.2 million principal amount of its 5.25% Convertible Senior Notes due 2025 (the "notes") for aggregate consideration consisting of $130.1 million in cash and approximately 2.6 million shares of Arch Resources' common stock. The number of shares of Arch Resources' common stock issued pursuant to the exchanges was determined over the four consecutive trading day period beginning on, and including, May 19, 2022. The exchanged notes have been retired. Approximately $30.0 million in aggregate principal amount of notes remain outstanding with terms unchanged.

"With these transactions, Arch has strengthened and simplified its capital structure in a way that should drive significant long-term value for our shareholders," said Paul A. Lang, Arch's chief executive officer and president. "In aggregate, we have avoided approximately 743,000 shares of stock dilution via the use of $130.1 million of cash, prevented potential incremental dilution associated with expected future dividend payments, reduced Arch's overall indebtedness by an incremental 40 percent from March 31, 2022 levels, and eliminated $6.6 million in annual future interest payments."

In total, Arch has settled approximately 80 percent of its outstanding convertible debt securities. The capped calls that Arch put in place in November 2020 – at the time of the initial offering of the notes – remain outstanding and have an intrinsic value of $62.1 million.

In February 2022, Arch announced a new capital allocation model that includes the return to stockholders of 50 percent of the prior quarter's discretionary cash flow – defined as cash flow from operations minus capital expenditures and contributions to the thermal mine reclamation fund – via a variable quarterly cash dividend in conjunction with a fixed quarterly cash dividend. Arch further stated that it planned to use the remaining 50 percent of the prior quarter's discretionary cash flow for use in share buybacks, special dividends, the repurchase of potentially dilutive securities, and/or capital preservation.

"Through these exchanges, we have settled a significant percentage of the potentially dilutive securities referenced in our capital return model – in a quick and efficient manner – and going forward expect to direct 'the second 50 percent' of our future discretionary cash flows towards the other strategic priorities clearly laid out in our new capital return formula, including stock buybacks," Lang said.

In support of these evolving priorities, the Arch board of directors recently increased the existing authorization under the company's share repurchase program from $223 million to $500 million.

Since the start of 2022, Arch has taken significant steps to strengthen its balance sheet and enhance its capital structure, including repaying more than $400 million, or nearly 70 percent, of its overall indebtedness and funding its recently established thermal mine reclamation fund to nearly 80 percent of targeted levels. In addition, and as discussed, the company re-initiated its capital return program and declared a quarterly dividend of $8.11 per share – payable on June 15, 2022 to shareholders of record on May 31, 2022 – consistent with its new capital return formula.

The exchanges were conducted as private placements, and the shares of common stock issued in the exchanges were issued pursuant to the exemption from the registration requirements of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "Securities Act"), afforded by Section 4(a)(2) of the Securities Act in transactions not involving any public offering. This press release is neither an offer to sell nor a solicitation of an offer to buy any securities described above, nor will there be any offer, solicitation or sale of any securities in any jurisdiction in which such offer, solicitation or sale would be unlawful.
